

Spider Networks Extends Its Reseller Web With Azzurri Communications Ltd.

London, April 10, 2007 - Spider Networks today announces the appointment of Azzurri Communications Ltd. provider of learning and teaching software to the Education market as a reseller of its managed learning environment, Edukit. Azzurri will resell Edukit under the brand 'Talmos Communicator' within its overall Talmos education suite.

Azzurri Communications (<http://www.azzurrieducation.com>) is a leading education solutions company providing innovative solutions to a large number of LEAs and Schools in the UK. They are one of only two providers who have received four BECTA accreditations for; learning platform services provider, infrastructure services framework supplier, internet service provider and interactive whiteboard framework provider.

TALMOS (Teaching and Learning Management Open System) is the name for Azzurri's suite of educational software and services. TALMOS has been developed as a whole school Curriculum MIS system. Azzurri has white-labeled Spider's Edukit suite which complements their overall offering by providing a robust school and LEA communications portal including an informative homepage allowing up to date information on the school, email for all pupils, teachers and staff, file storage to keep students work in progress, chat rooms to teach kids how to behave in an online environment, website builder to teach kids how to create their own websites and threaded discussion forums to keep the pupils involved in the curriculum.

"We are delighted to be reselling Edukit to round out our education suite," says Ed Collins, sales director for Azzurri. "Edukit provides us with a strong offering to the Primary schools, their new primary school user interface and homepage complement our curriculum based offerings."

"Azzurri is one of the leading providers of learning platforms to LEAs and school in the UK," says Jim Conroy, managing director of Spider Networks. "We are very pleased that they have chosen us to complement their already strong education software offerings."
